

Technology Commercializers

At Battelle, commercializing technology is basic—and complex. We listen to the market, build and acquire world-class expertise, integrate it into a technology team, do the hard work in the lab, then work with industry, government and investors to accelerate the technology to market. But each time it's different. It keeps life interesting.

Through strategic coinvesting and risk/value sharing, this AgriFood team leveraged scientific expertise, program management, and cooperation with the customer's development staff to accelerate the development of crop protection products, creating significant value for a leading agrochemical company and Battelle.